Iran Aide Hits Russian Stand

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

WASHINGTON, March 2 (INS)—Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala today branded as "wholly unacceptable" the Soviet position that Red troops must remain in Azerbaijan because of disturbed conditions there. Hussein Ala's comment came as the State Department awaited official word from Tehran before expressing itself on the

The ambassador explained he had cabled Tehran for instructions, but added he could not conceive of any voluntary agreement which would permit the Red army to consolidate Russia's position in Azerbaijan.

Pending receipt of these instructions, Ala said he could only follow the position previously pursued.

The United Staes moved with utmost caution. Responsible Washington sources believed the United States would not take official notice of the situation unless it is formally brought to attention by Tehran or Moscow.

Britain was reported to have only 100 soldiers in Iran scheduled for evacuation over the weekend.

Sec. of State Byrnes had criticized continued occupation of friendly lands for the purpose of gaining any special advantage. His words interpreted as criticism of Russia's behavior in Iran.

Meanwhile, American-Russian relations underwent another test today as a result of the disclosure that two Russian planes had fired on two American Navy planes near Darien, Manchuria, to which the U. S. Navy has protested in very strong language.

U. S. Turns Over 50,000 Red Nazis to Russia

By DONALD DOANE

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 2 (AP)—The United States Army has turned over to Soviet Russia more than 50,000 men caught fighting for Germany who have been classified as Russian Nationals.

Prisoner-of-war camps in the American zone are nearly empty of Russians. It is explained here that under an agreement at Yalta the United States committed itself to turn over to the Soviets all Russian citizens captured in German uniforms, who were members of the Red army and could not show discharges, or who were accused by Russia of voluntarily giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

This was to be done "without regard to their personal wishes, and by force if necessary."

What awaits these men in Russian territory is not known here, but frenzied efforts by some of them to escape going there indicates they do not contemplate the prospect with pleasure. At least 10 have committed suicide.

Peron Victory Now Indicated

BUENOS AIRES, March 2 (AP)—Col. Juan Peron captured eight more electoral votes in the Province of La Rioja today and had a country-wide indicated electoral vote of 198, nine more than necessary for victory.

While only about 10 per cent of the ballots in last Sunday's presidential election had been counted, the Labor Party candidate led in eight provinces and the capital city.

The count in two of these provinces, La Rioja and Jujuy, was completed. In LaRioja he received 10,598 votes compared to 8957 for his Democratic Union opponent, Dr. Jose Tamborini.

French 4-Power Plan Given U. S.

PARIS, March 2 (AP)—France has proposed that a special four-power conference be called on the future of Germany.

The proposal was handed to U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery yesterday in reply to a request a month ago by Sec. of State Byrnes that the French cease blocking establishing of a centralized German regime. The French cabinet approved the French proposal.

Choir Singers' Bodies in Pit

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 2 (INS) — Russell Koontz, 42-year-old Sunday school superintendent at nearby Clear Creek, and Mrs. Phyllis Coleman, 32, of Bloomington, were found slain in a sludge pit five miles north of Bloomington today.

Koontz had been clubbed to death and Mrs. Coleman, a creamery employe, was strangled.

The bodies were found after a search instituted by Koontz's wife, Ruth, and Ben Smith, a business associaet of Koontz in the Empire Stone Co.

After the discovery of the bodies Sheriff Albert M. Skirvin questioned Mrs. Coleman's husband, Kenneth, a lunchroom worker, but reelased him.

Smith said Koontz left his office yesterday noon to visit an abandoned quarry to look over some machinery the company planned to purchase.

When he had not returned by nightfall, Mrs. Koontz telephoned Smith, who picked up Sheriff Skirvin. They drove to the abandoned quarry.

There they found Koontz's car. A further shearch disclosed blood in an old tool shed, and a bloody trail led them to the sludge pit 30 feet away.

The bodies were lying in 18 inches of water in the pit, which was six feet deep. State Police thought both victims had been bound head and foot.

Mrs. Coleman's body was only partially clothed. Shoes and stockings and the upper part of her dress were on the body. Her girdle was found in a nearby shed.

The sheriff added he believed a woman's slip had been used to gag Koontz, and said Mrs. Coleman's slip was not on the body.

Two small hatchets were picked up in th building where the bodies were found, but Skirvin did not believe they had figured in the slaying.

Koontz was supervisor of the Sunday school department of the Clear Creek Christian Church. Both he and Mrs. Coleman sang in the choir.

Police discounted the theory robbery was the motive as $107 was found on Koontz's body.

There were two sets of boot tracks and auto tire marks near the scene.

There was every indication a terrific struggle had preceded the slayings.

Koontz had one child, but Mrs. Coleman was childless.

Sheriff Skirvin quoted Coleman as saying:

"I wish I did know something. I don't know who could have done it."

Seer's Dire Warning True: Fumes Kill 4 in Car

A fortune teller's prediction of lovers who would have each other only in death, and a young woman's lightly voiced prophecy at a birthday party last night—"We may not be living next year"—came true with tragic impact today when the couple were found dead with another man and woman in a parked car in Church st., near North ave., Wakefield.

"Death by accident, due to carbon monoxide fumes, no need of autopsies," was the terse report of Medical Examiner Ira W. Jackson.

Slumped in the front seat, his head bowed over the wheel, the girl's head resting on his shoulder, was Antonio Pagliuca, 32, of Dartmouth st., Medford, to whom a fortune teller had said only two weeks ago, "You love her very much but you will never have her in this life; you'll have her in death."

In death beside him, was the young woman the seer had mentioned, Miss Gertrude Burnette, 26, of Everett st., Stoneham.

It was she, who at a birthday party last night, had presented a gardenia to a friend with the chuckling remark, "Take it, we may not be here next year, we may not even be living next year."

In the rear seat were William A. Roberts, 38, of Church st., Stoneham, and Miss Virginia Stevens, 23, of Green st., Stoneham. Death left them with Roberts' head against her shoulder.

Roberts was the father of five children who live with their mother in Pine st., Stoneham. He and his wife had been estranged for six years.

Pagliuca also was married. Torn by his love for Miss Burnette, he had sought out the fortune teller for some sign that his marital problem might be solved, according to Miss Esther Genier, 36, of Main st., Stoneham. It was she for whom the birthday party was given and, in company with the aura of eerie prophecy which preceded the deaths, she, too, told of a premonition that something tragic was about to happen.

She related:

"Tony Pagliuca and Gertrude Burnette came to my house at 8:15 last night. It was my birthday. They took me to a Sullivan sq. restaurant. There she gave me a gardenia and when I told her how nice it was she made the remark about life's uncertainty. 'We may not be living next year' . . . I feel faint when I think about it now but at the time we all just laughed.

"The three of us settled down to have a good time and be happy. Tony told about the fortune teller's prediction. We managed to laugh at that, too.

"Gertrude and I had ridden in Tony's car before. We had noticed the heater gave out a ter-

Hospital Girl Saw Dead in Parked Car

A pretty Winchester Hospital secretary and her father were among the three persons who first discovered the bodies of four monoxide victims in a parked car in Wakefield today.

Miss Dorothy M. Montague, 21, of Western ave., Wakefield, was being driven by her father, Joseph C. Montague, to a bus stop when they were stopped in Church st. by James McGrath, a town employe.

"He told us there were some people in the parked car and he was afraid something was wrong," Miss Montague said. "He told us the gateman at the crossing had asked him to investigate."

She said she and her father accompanied McGrath to the parked car, lights of which still were on with the motor running.

"Father opened the door and we saw the four people inside," she continued. "They looked as though they were sleeping but we saw they were dead.

"Father shut off the ignition and put the keys in his pocket. Then we opened all the doors and Mr. McGrath stayed beside the car while we drove to the police station to report and turn the keys over to them."

They arrived just after Arthur Sederquist of Church st., telephoned police about the car and seeing a man and woman hurry away from it.

Brookline Mother Amnesia Victim in Providence

An attractive young Brookline mother, missing since she walked out of the downtown department store where she was employed, was located in a Providence hospital today, a victim of amnesia.

Mrs. Mavis June Hunt, 28, wife of a soldier now on duty in Nuernberg, was found wandering aimlessly in Providence last night and taken to the hospital for treatment. She is the mother of a 6-year-old son, Lee.

As a result of a teletype broadcast, Providence police notified Boston authorities today they had picked up an unidentified woman and they in turn communicated with Brookline police.

A short time later Mrs. Hunt's mother, Mrs. Frank Lee Clarke, of Winchester st., Brookline, telephoned the hospital and through description of her daughter's clothing and other identifying marks was assured the patient was her missing daughter.

Boy, 8, in Icy Dive Saves Dog

If ever a boy deserved a pet dog it is Dominic Manuella, 8, of Clifton st., North Cambridge.

Dominic was walking past Jerry's pit, near Russell Field, today when he heard the splashing sounds of something struggling in the water. He looked and saw a black cocker spaniel.

Dominic didn't hesitate. He jumped into the icy water, tucked the spaniel under his arm—and found the slope was too steep for him, too. A pedestrian, discovering the plight of boy and dog, summoned police and firemen.

The rescue squad retrieved the pair. Dominic was rushed home for a hot bath and dry clothes. The spaniel, one "Mickey," was restored to his owner, Frances Heavern, a Clifton neighbor of Dominic.

Judy Buckley, 17-year-old stowaway from Bournemouth, England, soon will leave Boston to live with her aunt, Mrs. Rees Edwards, in St. Thomas, Canada.

According to an Associated Press dispatch, immigration authorities have arranged for Judy to enter Canada instead of being deported to England. She arrived in Boston Jan. 31 aboard the U. S. troopship Wallace M. Tyler, along with another English girl, Patricia Shepard, 18.

Judy was discovered five days out at sea when an appendicitis attack forced her to give herself up. She was held here by immigration authorities. The case went to top officials, including Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Peabody authorities passed an ordinance limiting loads of gravel to 8000 pounds, but Atty. Gen. Clarence Barnes argued the state has the power to invalidate the city ruling.

BOARD HEARS ARAB CASE

NEW YORK, March 2 (INS)—Members of the Anglo-American Palestine investigation committee met today near Cairo to hear the Arab case.

Trans-Atlantic Plane Finally Lands in Hub

Boston's Logan Airport finally became a transatlantic air terminal today, making it the Hub of the Air Universe in fact as well as fancy—but it had to credit the weatherman with an assist.

A Pan-American clipper, one of the large C-54 transport which have been ducking Logan as too small to handle that size ship, winged in to a perfect three-point and unscheduled landing when weather conditions at New York made a landing at La-Guardia Field impossible.

The clipper took off from Lisbon, Portugal, last Wednesday, stopping at Shannon, Eire, and Gander, Newfoundland, before heading for New York with its list of 26 passengers and crew of 11.

Then the weather man stepped in, perhaps in a gesture of atonement for some of the beastly brews he has mixed for Boston this winter.

LaGuardia Field was closed down completely and the plane captain, C. S. Szmagaj, decided to have a whirl at Logan.

Airport attaches gaped and then gulped as the huge clipper swooped down.

Logan Airport had actually received its first transatlantic plane bearing passengers.

The passengers did not share their enthusiasm. They had to see about train connections for New York to complete their journeys.

Among those listed were Mrs. Florinda Perdigao and her 2-year-old daughter, Augusta, who had boarded the clipper at Lisbon, and Thorwald H. Andersen, Danish vice-consul at New York.

No Comparison

Oratory Zone, National Finals To Be At Boston Latin School

By BERT FORD

A Boston school that has played an important role in the nation's history has been selected as a fitting and significant institution in which to hold the Eastern Zone and national finals of the 1946 Hearst Newspapers Oratorical Contest. This is Boston Latin School, oldest public school in America, founded April 23, 1635, by the Town of Boston, a year before Harvard College was established.

Alumni of this famous school have included some of the nation's greatest statesmen, educators and military leaders and five of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence.

These five Latin School graduates were John Hancock, Samuel Adams and Robert Treat Paine of Massachusetts, Benjamin Franklin of Pennsylvania and William Hooper of North Carolina.

To high school and college students in 13 major cities throughout the country, eligible for this contest, the choice of this school will prove of great historic interest, as will the subject of the contest: "Andrew Jackson, Seventh President of the United States."

For in tradition and in the principles of its founders, Boston Latin School has been, since its beginning, a truly democratic and American institution—a school which the great democrat and patriot, Andrew Jackson, to whom the oratorical contest is dedicated, would have found in harmony with the principles for which he fought and lived.

It is through the generosity and co-operation of the Boston school committee that this famous school has been offered for the Eastern Zone and national finals in the contest.

Members of the committee are Clement A. Norton, chairman; Dr. Patrick J. Foley, Daniel J. McDevitt, Michael J. Ward and Joseph C. White. And in offering the school, they recalled incidents in its history which would have met with the approval and enthusiasm of Andrew Jackson himself.

It was during the winter of 1775—Andrew Jackson was then a lad 8 years old, growing up in a South Carolina frontier wilderness—when the boys of the Latin School created an "incident" with the British Army in Boston. The boys had been accustomed to coast on sleds down Beacon st., across Tremont, and down School st., but Gen. Haldimand, then commanding the British troops, lived on School st.

His servant strewed ashes on the coast. The indignant Latin School youngsters chose a committee to wait upon the general. They must have been persuasive, for the general ordered his servant to repair the damage.

"I have trouble enough with Boston men, and won't have any with Boston boys," said the general. And he agreed with the Governor, to whom he reported the incident:

"It is impossible to beat the notion of liberty out of the people, as it is rooted in 'em from their childhood."

Local finals in Boston will be held April 10 in Faneuil Hall. The Eastern Zone finals will be held April 24, and the national finals on May 2. Local and national awards will total $25,000, equally divided between high school and college groups.

Local awards are: first prize, $250; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $25, all prizes in Victory Bonds. First prize in the national finals will be a $1000 Victory Bond, and to all runners-up, a $100 Victory Bond.

RULES FOR TEST

1—An oration must be delivered without reference to notes.
2—It must not exceed six minutes.
3—The general subject is: Andrew Jackson, Seventh President of the United States.
4—Each school entered must conduct its own intramural competition, choosing its own judges and following its own procedure. Individual school winners so selected must be announced to the Oratorical Editor.
5—Elimination contests will be held in each city specified, according to local plans. Special judges will be chosen for these contests. The decision of the judges is binding.
6—The city-wide contests will be held in Boston on April 10. Winners will receive local prizes.
7—The Eastern zone finals will be held in Boston on April 24. Winners of Eastern zone will participate. At the same time the Mid-western and Pacific zones will choose their winners.
8—Zone winners will meet for the grand National finals in Boston, May 2, when National prizes will be awarded.
9—Winners or zone National prizes in past Hearst Oratorical Contests, and students who are related to any employe of the Hearst Newspapers are not eligible to compete.
10—The decisions of the oratorical judges will be final.

Wise Ruler

Andrew Jackson had little formal education. His attainments in scholarship were admittedly meager. He knew only the Latin he picked up in the practice of his profession as lawyer. His spelling and grammar left much to be desired.

But his native intelligence, his fundamental common sense, and his instinct for the needs of the people whom he served more than compensated for lack of a college degree. Despite this lack, he became, and lives in history as one of America's greatest Presidents and greatest military leaders.

Austen Lake Tells Why War Crime Trial Drags

By AUSTEN LAKE
Boston American Staff Writer

NUERNBERG, March 2—There is something ridiculous about the sight of 21 nondescript men, whose ambitions to snatch the whole world cost uncounted millions of human lives, being arraigned here with such elaborate formality.

Actually, this should be a plain police court job where the evidence and alibis are given and the verdict rendered promptly.

Austen Lake

They are just what they look—a band of gray-faced middle-aged hoodlums like the members of Brooklyn's Murder, Inc. As a fresh arrival at the Nuernberg Palace of Justice, I see this trial as less a court of law than a demonstration to prove the democratic method by way of repetitions and formality with a Hollywood front. For example, during the first three-quarters of the day, eight justices sit polishing their nails, doodling or enjoying open-eye slumber. They massage their jowls or, like French Justice Robert Farco, gnaw their nails, obviously bored.

Suddenly Justice Biddle emerges from a moustache pulling contest with himself to begin asking Prosecutor Robert Jackson questions about the niceties of law.

French Justice Dieudonne de Vabras, bald and with a walrus moustache, deals himself into the game. Instead of questions, there were long propaganda speeches to demonstrate rigid impartiality and high-minded principle.

Now I know why this trial drools on and on with no decision. The boys are playing legal leap frog when they could have cleaned up the job with a few intelligent strokes.

The leading man in this super spectacle is Hermann Goering, or Fatso, as the American correspondents call him.

Other prisoners, like Karl Doenitz, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Wilhelm Keitel and Rudolf Hess, seem to be withdrawn spiritually from the scene, maintaining blank masks, vacant eyes, and are obviously engrossed with dreams of the past.

Goering fidgets under imposed silence, he likes to talk so. Frequently, he leans over and bends the ear of Rudolf Hess, who greets him with a stony face like those I saw when the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp was liberated.

Goering sits with an Army blanket around his knees even though the room is warm. He rubs the hollow of his back with his fist and makes grimaces. Then he buzzes with his counsel over the rail of the dock or hands the American soldier, who always stands facing him, a paper or book to give to somebody.

This soldier lives in Taunton, but was afraid to give me his name for fear his colonel would get sore. He said his father drives a passenger bus on the Providence run.

This soldier inspects everything Goering hands him for hidden instruments. He is just an ex-school kid who now supervises every simple act by the former No. 2 Reich lord and world master thief.

Pauley told newsmen, after checking the vote outlook with Hannegan, his chance for confirmation "looks better than ever," but indicated he did not have the same optimism on winning a favorable recommendation from the naval committee.

Lewis Sets Miners' Strike for April 1

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—UMW Chieftain John L. Lewis today filed on behalf of some 400,000 miners a 30-day strike notice. Simultaneously, Lewis notified bituminous coal operators that he wished to reopen wage talks with them on March 12 in Washington.

The miners' strike notice was filed with the National Labor Relations Board, Labor Sec. Schwellenbach and the wage stabilization board.

Lewis said the miners "will continue to work for the ensuing 30 days."

His letter declared the issues between the UMW and the mine operators covered wages, the question of whether supervisory employes could belong to the UMW, working hours and other matters.

Lewis said the Administration's new wage-price policy had resulted in a "significant change" and that the UMW contract could be terminated as of midnight, March 31.

The strike notice did not affect the 70,000 hard coal miners in Pennsylvania, covered by a separate contract.

Society Weddings

HER GRANDMOTHER'S seed pearl earrings and brooch are being worn by post deb Virginia "Ginger" Munroe with a wedding gown of white starched lace at her marriage this afternoon to Lt. (j. g.) George E. Connors USNR of Fall River. Her fingertip veil is borrowed from Mrs. Peter Benson, Newton Center, who was married in Rome while overseas with the Red Cross, and she is carrying orchids, gardenias and ivy.

Mrs. Peter Wilson of Providence and Priscilla Munroe, sisters of the couple, are wearing white chiffon with ruffled bustles and carrying cascades of jonquils, iris and ivy. The family wedding, performed by Rev. Thomas McDonough, is followed by a large reception at Brae Burn Country Club.

Marguerite King

The bridegroom's brothers, Lt. Alvin J. Connors Jr., USA, still in France, and Lt. Robert A. Connors, USNR, in Tokyo, are honorary ushers. Lt. Edward McGrath, USNR is best man. Following a honeymoon in New York the couple will live in Fall River. The bride, a graduate of Beaver Country Day, attended Sweet Briar and Wheelock School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis F. Munroe of Waban. Lt. Connors is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Connors of Fall River. He graduated from Providence College and recently returned from the Pacific after four years in the Navy.

Blue and gold dresses, the bride's sorority colors, are being worn by the bridesmaids at Marguerite Pam King's wedding to Lt. Com. Milton Hackett, USNR, in Crawford Memorial Church, Winchester, this evening. Rev. Richard T. Broeg and Rev. Harris E. Heverly are officiating at the candlelight ceremony and the reception is at Winchester Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice King of Arlington. Com. Hackett is the son of Mrs. Hilda Hackett of Cottonwood, Minn. Given in marriage by her father, Pam is wearing ivory satin with seed pearl embroidery, a satin Juliet cap with illusion veil, and carrying sweet peas, roses and orchids.

Sara Gelardi, Jamaica Plain, maid of honor, is wearing gold marquisette with matching lace gloves and tulle Empress Eugenie hat. The bridesmaids, in similar costumes of light blue are Barbara Peters, Dorothy Kenney, Natalie Kerwin and Virginia Graves. They are carrying spring flowers.

Since Pam is a graduate of B. U. College of Music and assistant music supervisor in Darien, Ct., public schools, music plays a large part in her wedding. Frances Story, Louis Siagel and Charles Potter are soprano, violinist and organist respectively. During the reception the Metre Dames Chorus of B. U., will serenade the bride and groom.

Arleyne Toumey, the bride's 13-year old cousin, is in charge of the guest book and six-year-old Francis Gianni, is ring bearer. Lt. John Fulham, USNR, of Wellesley is best man. The ushers are Robert King, Lt. Marland Colby, Lt. James Hemsworth and Ens. Donald Larson.

Mrs. King is receiving in a fuchsia gown trimmed with matching sequins and Mrs. Hackett in blue with fuchsia sequins. The bride will continue her music teaching at Darien until Com. Hackett is mustered out of service. They plan to study together next year at U. of Minnesota, where he completed three years before joining the Navy. They will honeymoon in New York and Virginia.

rific volume of heat and Tony had talked about having it repaired.

"Then Bill Roberts came in with Virginia Stevens. It was approaching 1 a. m. when I met some other friends and accepted their offer to drive me home. It was near the closing hour, so I suppose the two couples left in Tony's car soon afterward.

"We were almost at my home," Miss Genier related, "when I had a premonition something was going to happen. I told the driver, 'Take me to Everett st., I think I'll sleep with Gertrude tonigl.t.' Then I decided I was disturbed for no cause at all. But even when I got inside my house I had a persistent feeling I should have gone there."

As it turned out, Miss Genier's impulse would have availed nothing if she had translated it into action, for Gertrude Burnette was never to step inside the doors of her home again.

Shortly before 3 a. m., John Burke, a gateman at the Boston & Maine crossing, saw the Pagliuca car parked 50 yards away in Church st. The motor was running. An hour later, noticing the car still there, Burke began to wonder, but he could not leave his post.

The first pedestrian Burke saw was James McGrath, a town employe on his way to work. He asked McGrath to investigate the car.

McGrath stopped an automobile containing Joseph C. Montague of Western ave., Wakefield, and his 21-year-old daughter, Dorothy. The Montagues accompanied him to the car. There they saw four limp forms in postures which could have been those of sleep or of death.

Montague wrenched open a door and shut off the motor. He saw then the four were dead. He, his daughter and McGrath opened the other doors, then drove to the police station to summon help.

Miss Stevens' family had not seen her for two weeks, although they did not consider that unusual, for she was employed by the Hubbard Shoe Co., Rochester, N. H. Her brother, William, his voice breaking as he cought to comfort his mother, Mrs. Amy Stevens, said:

"Wt didn't even know she was in town."

It was learned later she had come from Rochester for the express purpose of meeting Roberts at Sullivan sq.

Miss Burnette was an employe of the Marylyn Sandal Co., Stoneham, where she worked as a stapler. Esther Genier, whose birthday party was the prelude to death, is also employed there.

The two women and man from Stoneham were identified by Patrolman Dennis L. McKinnon of the Stoneham force.

'Spanish Main' Goes to Exeter

The Technicolor swashbuckler, "Spanish Main," moves to the Exeter St. Theater screen tomorrow . . . Paul Henreid's fascinating baddie, Walter Slezak's voluminously proportioned villain and Maureen O'Hara's eye-widening charm are as vivid as the rainbow hues that give new life to an old yarn.

The John Wayne-starring frontier picture, "Dakota," with Vera Ralston and Walter Brennan, is due at the Modern Theater tomorrow . . . For suspense, we give you the mystery thriller, "My Name Is Julia Ross," featuring Nina Foch and Dame May Whitty.

The 14 Gregory Girls are the top attraction on the Globe 1-to-11 p. m. vaudeville show

Patricia Morgan, at the Globe, and Amy Fong, at the Old Howard, are great favorites with burlesque patrons.

Hail Judith Evelyn in Role

Judith Evelyn, who is starred with Neil Hamilton and James Rennie in the Colonial hit, "State of the Union," has been hailed as one who carried on the Duse-Bernhard tradition.

She has had varied and colorful career in a wide range of parts. Certainly her experience in 1937 when she, with all other Americans, was invited out of England, was not only colorful and exciting and all but tragic . . . for her.

For Miss Evelyn (pronounced with the long "E" as Eeve-lyn) was one of only seven saved out of her lifeboat when the ill-fated Athenia went down.

There were 80 in the craft when it went over the side of the torpedoed liner, but when the propeller of a rescue ship cut across their path in the darkness all were spilled into the ocean. She was rescued after clinging to wreckage for 12 hours. It was during that harrowing ordeal that she lost 10 pounds.

As a result of the Athenia disaster, Judith Evelyn has lost all appreciation for possessions. She says that for a long time she wanted to own nothing at all; just being alive and having her health was enough.

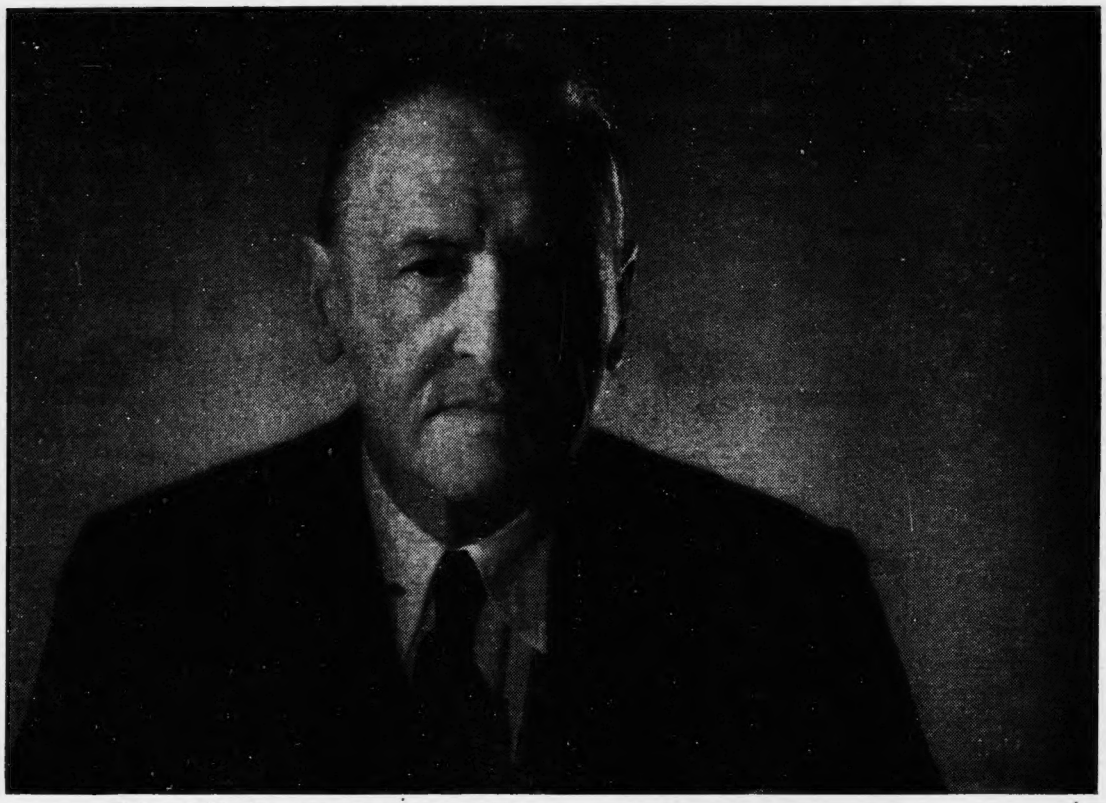
This month it's Maugham



W. Somerset Maugham returns to short-story writing in the March issue of Good Housekeeping with an utterly fresh, completely amusing new slant on the oldest situation in literature—the eternal triangle.

Mr. Maugham has just proved . . .

Mr. Maugham has just proved, once more, something most people knew anyway.

In "The Colonel's Lady"—his first short story in years—he demonstrates again that he is one of the great storytellers of all time.

One way to attract craftsmen of this caliber is to pay more for their stories—which Good Housekeeping does. Paying the highest rates in the magazine publishing business doesn't exactly drive famous authors from your door.

But that isn't the biggest reason why Good Housekeeping publishes W. Somerset Maugham and John P. Marquand and Richard Sherman. Or why it publishes Grace Amundson and Charles Morgan. Or William March and John van Druten and James Street.

For Good Housekeeping doesn't pay for fame alone. The fact is, a famous author's name, by itself, never has been an "Open sesame" to Good Housekeeping's pages. The story itself must be the best an author is capable of writing.

Writers know this. And it has resulted in a happy state of affairs where a great many of the best men and women writing today send their best work to Good Housekeeping—first. They would rather be published in Good Housekeeping than in any other magazine because in professional circles—among authors, authors' agents, and publishers—it is an accepted fact that Good Housekeeping is publishing the best popular fiction now being written.

America takes for granted the undisputed superiority of Good Housekeeping in the realm of home management. No other magazine remotely approaches it in the facilities established for giving American women the most interesting and authoritative information each month on food, fashions, textiles, building, appliances, decorating, beauty, and child care.

But what America may not realize is that the readers of Good Housekeeping have better literary taste and are getting better literary fare than any other large group of people in the country today.

The March issue is on the newsstands now.

Keep Those Bulges and Bumps Away by Daily Exercise

DON'T GIVE UP if you can't get this exercise the first time you try it. Neither could Joan Winfield. Now she's a past master of this balance exercise. With arms outstretched and the figure bent down to a sitting position . . . stretch forward first one foot, then the other. You'll be doing a vigorous dance step . . . but the waist and hips will get a sound trimming.

IF YOU DON'T own a hassock . . . get an able substitute and acquire the position which Joan Winfield has in this picture. But first lie flat on your back and bring up the body to enable hand to touch toes. Another spine-straightening, hip and tummy flattening wonder drill.

TO IMPROVE the abdominal muscles . . . make that tummy flat . . . and to pep up internal health . . . here is a good exercise illustrated by Joan Winfield. Lie on your back . . . brace hips with hands. Swing legs up in wide circle touching floor behind you. A few times at first . . . more later . . . and both the tummy and the hips will learn to obey.

REACHING for the moon in more than a whimsy when a gal stretches and stretches way up to THERE to make those muscles know they're working for a fine figure . . . one like Warner Star Joan Winfield has.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Beauty and Fashion Editor

A FEW EXERCISES a day will keep the soft, bulging tummy away. You know that slight abdominal crescendo which ruins any appearance no matter what kind of clothes a gal wears.

And if you're a stenographer or an office sitter doing this or that job from a chair . . . you, too, should appreciate a few daily twists and twirls . . . not only to help straighten out the spine (how many girls sit properly at their work?) . . . but to help you avoid the eagle's spread in a place where it is wrong and bad for the figure.

And with advance spring fashions pointing to the long torso look . . . you'll want a lean torso to do your Easter outfit and you justice. So these exercises have been purposely timed to get you ready.

Out in Hollywood . . . daily calisthenics, not of the too strenuous kind . . . are as important in the curriculum of an aspiring young movie star as her daily instruction in speech, diction, poise, histrionics and makeup.

A course of simple but effective exercises is meted out to these young celluloid Thespians with unflinching regularity . . . and believe you me, they don't miss a daily trick in this drill program.

Pursuing a few exercises a day are not particularly difficult nor too exaxing on physical strength. After a while . . . one gets used to doing them with as much ease and methodical achievement as completing the necessary daily ablutions of sound, clean living. Too many girls think that physical exercises are too taxing.

They are . . . if one does them until she is just about ready to drop from exhaustion. This is really bad for the system and misses fire. But the allotment of a few minutes a day until one reaches a more prolonged and sustaining session steadies the figure until it is able to receive more punishment from exercise.

We've pictured Warner Star Joan Winfield going through five very simple exercises . . . those which she and a host of other young actresses like her . . . are required to do to keep the figure supple and alive, feminine and fine . . . flat and softly curved in the right places.

Try them for yourself!

We'll be glad to send you some simple but effective exercises for streamlining the figure or spot-reducing the bulges, if you write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables Appeal to Returning GI's

By MARTHA LEE

Household Editor

FRESH FRUITS and vegetables are foods that appeal especially to returned GI men and women who found them missing in foreign lands. Those who had to be cajoled into eating salads now demand them—and lots of them. See that they get plenty of these mineral and vitamin-rich foods. Make the salads of crisp, uncooked greens and fresh ripe fruits. Give them a flavor-right dressing and again—serve them often.

These days, fresh fruits and vegetables are not too plentiful in winter markets—but a careshopper will find such greens as chicory, escarole, lettuce, new green cabbage and some spinach—any one of which may be used in salad making as well as a combination of all of them. As for fruits, there are bananas, winter pears, oranges, lemons and grapefruit now available.

WESTERN WAY SALAD

Western Way salad is a different way of serving salad greens that will entice all the members of the family into taking their vitamins the salad way. An uncooked egg, broken onto the salad greens, catches the cheese and blends it, during the tossing, with oil, into a smooth, flavorful coating for each salad leaf. The lemon juice adds a just-right tartness.

The Hollywood custom of serving a salad to open the meal, gives the name "Western Way." Make this salad just before meal is served at the table. Once ingredients are assembled, it takes but a minute or two to mix. Be sure, however, to make garlic flavored oil several hours in advance. (Put 1 or 2 garlic buds in ⅓ cup olive oil.)

HERE'S THE SALAD

In a large salad bowl place:
3 qts. crisp, chilled salad greens
6 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
Black pepper to taste—freshly ground if possible
Salt to taste
¼ cup grated hard cheese, Parmesan type
¼ cup or more crumbled blue cheese
1 uncooked egg; break onto salad greens; don't beat
3 lemons (about ½ cup juice); squeeze or pour directly onto egg

Toss salad well then add:
1 pint crisp croutons (thoroughly toasted bread cubes) dipped in the olive oil from which garlic has been removed. Toss salad again lightly.

Serve at once while croutons are crisp. Makes 6 servings.

BANANA NUT SPLIT SALAD

Cover salad plate with crisp greens. Split a ripe banana lengthwise with a sharp knife and lay on greens. Peel and slice an orange. Put orange slices over banana. Serve with peanut dressing. Makes 1 serving.

PEANUT SALAD DRESSING

Beat together well equal parts of lemon juice, peanut butter and evaporated milk. Season to taste with sugar or honey and salt. Serve over fruit salads. Good also with lettuce or cabbage salad.

Why not make an inviting change in the family salads tonight by introducing them to this delicious home-made salad dressing to be served on calavo salad. Calavos are among the fruits now available in the market also.

CHEESE SALAD DRESSING FOR CALAVO SALADS

1-3 cup cider vinegar
2-3 cup water
3 tbsp. sugar
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. tabasco sauce
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
2 egg yolks
¼ lb. diced nippy cheese (quick melting type)
⅛ cup chopped ripe olives
¼ tbsp. diced pimiento

Heat vinegar and water to boiling. Combine sugar, corn starch, tabasco sauce, salt and mustard, and stir into hot vinegar. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add cheese and cook over very low heat until cheese is melted; chill Add chopped olives and pimiento. Serve on sliced calavo salad.

BAD TREATY

A GRAVE THREAT to American free enterprise is involved in the Anglo-American petroleum agreement executed in London last September and submitted to the United States Senate for ratification.

Ostensibly the treaty provides only for regulation of international aspects of the petroleum trade but actually it would inevitably bring about detailed regulation of the DOMESTIC petroleum industry by the Federal Government—a function now exercised by the States.

Under the terms of the treaty the United States Government commits itself to the idea that "the international petroleum trade in all its aspects should be conducted in an orderly manner on a world-wide basis" and that, to this end, "the exploration for and development of petroleum resources, the construction and operation of refineries and other facilities, and the distribution of petroleum, SHALL NOT BE HAMPERED BY RESTRICTIONS INCONSISTENT WITH THE PURPOSES OF THIS AGREEMENT."

In signing that treaty the United States Government obviously would assume the obligation to remove any regulation imposed by STATE regulation to which the British Government might object as hampering the "orderly development" of the world petroleum trade.

And our experience with the British leaves no room for doubt that any State regulation that chanced to interfere with any British claim or project would be construed as hampering the "orderly development" of world trade.

Thus Congress, having assumed the obligation to make the treaty work, would be under constant pressure to extend Federal regulation into every phase of the industry, and Congress would have the AUTHORITY to do it.

A valid treaty, once formally adopted, becomes a supreme law of the land, overriding State constitutions and endowing Congress with the power to assume powers normally reserved to the States.

The signing of the treaty would open the way to almost certain usurpation of important rights of the States and it would immeasurably strengthen the hold of the Federal bureaucracy upon American business.

Moreover the treaty would constitute a threat to the PEACE of the United States.

It would involve us, apparently, in a world-wide cartel for the division and control of petroleum interests throughout the world.

GOOD CHANGE

PRESIDENT TRUMAN should be strongly commended for improving both the quality of government and the moral tone at Washington in replacing Harold L. Ickes as Secretary of the Interior with Captain J. A. Krug.

"Cap" Krug, especially while in the onerous role of chairman of the War Production Board during the closing months of the war, demonstrated that he is a competent and effective public servant.

He is a progressive but not unsound; in economic matters he is independent and liberal, without any trace of bluestone sky.

Distinguished and disinterested Americans, led by Bernard M. Baruch, backed "Cap" Krug for the top position in the wartime economic setup, and the choice proved a good one.

The vital interests of the American public will be protected by Mr. Krug in the Interior Department from exploitation by self-seeking private interests.

At the same time, "Cap" Krug, as a man of genuine integrity, will restore good taste at the Interior Department. Unlike Ickes, he will seek no special encomium for his personal honesty.

"Cap" Krug can be counted on to administer the laws equitably, but he will not be willing to succeed Mr. Ickes as hatchet man for the Administration.

Inasmuch as Mr. Ickes' final act in public office was to stick the hatchet into the President himself, Mr. Truman doubtless feels well rid of curmudgeons in his Cabinet.

ADDED TO the month's list of remarkable remarks must be that made by Janice Hanson, Broadway beauty, when asked if she were going to get a divorce. Said Janice: "I'm afraid if I get divorced I might get married again. If I stay married, even though I'm separated, it's kind of like insurance."

PASSING BY: Nevada Smith. Buxom Broadwayite. Originally from Las Vegas, Nev. Nevada is not a nickname but the one her parents gave her. Miss is five feet, nine and a half is five feet nine and a half inches tall and weighs 138 pounds. So you see all the big girls don't come from Iowa . . . Hans Wagner. Baseball immortal. Hans claims the greatest baseball team of all time was the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1902. It takes a real young old timer to remember that club. The outfield was Clarke, Beaumont and Sebring. Infield, Bransfield, Ritchey, Wagner and Leach. Catchers, Phelps and Smith. Pitchers, Leever, Willis, Kennedy, Thompson, Vail.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—I claim the well-dressed man always leaves the bottom button of his vest open, as all handsome men like Adolphe Menjou do. My husband says this is ridiculous affectation practiced by style conscious males of the clothes-horse type.

Adolphe Menjou

How about it? . . . A—I am inclined to agree with your husband. Leaving a button open at the bottom of the vest seems an affectation to me. However, some style experts agree with you. Some do not. Others say a man shouldn't wear a vest at all, as it detracts from the smartness of his appearance. However, that might just be propaganda spread by tailors who want to put less material and work into a suit without reducing the price . . . Q—To settle an argument what town in Ireland was the heroine of the Irish love song "Bridget Donahue" supposed to have been born in? A—The song goes:

'Twas in the County Kerry,
A little way from Clare,
The town is called Killorgin
A pretty place to view,
But what makes it interesting is
My Bridget Donahue.

ASIDES: Nelson Baldwin of Oak Harbor, O., says: "We have four sons. Each of these boys at the age of one year weighed 30 pounds. Has California or Brooklyn ever been able to boast of four equally husky babies?" . . . Ralph Ary, Chicago lawyer, says he has seen the film version of "Naughty Marietta" 26 times. That's 25 times more than I saw it. But don't get me wrong. Jeanette MacDonald is still my favorite natural red-haired singing film star.

Jeanette MacDonald

HORSES AND WOMEN: "Being up to my neck in Libras, as I have many relatives, friends, acquaintances and co-workers born under that sign, I feel qualified to expert on the female of this species," writes a New Yorker. "It was Libra women who inspired my interest in astrology. I considered star gazing silly until I noted the striking similarity in the characteristics of women born under Libra. They all love the spotlight. If any other woman receives more attention they become insanely jealous. They are born flirts and have a talent for appearing innocent and naive, when they are in reality sophisticated and cynical. Though usually attractive, most Libra women have a difficult time holding their husbands. I will explain this situation in a later letter."

PLEASE NOTE: At the Lewes, Eng., race course three horses, Scobell, Wandering Nun and Mazurka, finished in a triple dead heat for first. Right behind them came two other horses, Thora and Cumberland, in a dead heat for second. Just one horse finished in third position. So there you have a triple dead heat for first, a double dead heat for second and a single horse for third. If that had happened at an American race-track using the mutuel machine system of wagering how would the payoff have been arranged?

"One, and a half!"

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MR. JUSTICE HENRY G. WENZEL, Jr., presiding over a name-changing case in the Supreme County of Queens County, rendered this decision:

"The court feels that this matter should be left until the boy has reached the age of discretion, or at least until he is 21, by which time, if I may borrow from the lexicon of modern youth, he may not choose so 'corny' a name as is now sought to be inflicted upon him. The use of a pen name does not require the sanction of this court, but I would point out that the use of their own name has not been a deterrent or embarrassment to Walter Lippman, George Sokolsky or a dozen others I could mention."

The case in point was over a 16-year-old boy, named Leon Arden Sussman, whose parents want him called hereafter Leon Arden.

The Judge said, "No!"

The parents found "Sussman" cumbersome but Arden "Anglican." By "Anglican," they meant English. It is a queer if not alien use of the adjective.

The parents might have told the judge that Sussman sounds Jewish and that their son wanted a name that did not sound Jewish.

I would recommend O'Brien, which no one could mistake.

THE JUDGE made reference to my name and I must admit that sometimes when I hear my name pronounced, I am tempted to change it to something "Anglican" like Montmorency.

My father's family had no patronymic until this generation. They were known as Solomon the son of Isaac, according to the Biblical style.

My paternal grandfather was known simply as the Rabbi of Kuznetz. The name Sokolsky, therefore, is not in my marrow as the name Hapsburg or Delano would be for those who own to such designations.

Certainly the name, Sokolsky, is descriptive neither of my race, religion nor nationality.

SHALL I CHANGE my name for convenience? Shall I call myself Sokol or Sokell or Douglas?

I know some Feinsteins who have become Stones; some Epsteins who have taken on an "Anglican" monicker as this Sussman boy wanted to do.

Maybe were I born Lifscutz, I could call myself Lofton. Perhaps I might call myself O'Toole.

Were it not that it is so convenient, I might do it. It is the convenience of name-changing that makes it so reprehensible.

It is living a lie for convenience. The name means nothing but the lie means everything.

When a man called Cohen changes his name to Coe, he deserts a glorious heritage for something cheap.

His ancestors were priests in the temple in Jerusalem. "A kingdom of priests shall ye be."

They can trace their blood back to Moses and Aaron. WHY WOULD ANYONE WANT TO THROW PRIDE OF HEREDITY OVER FOR CONVENIENCE? AND WHAT IS CONVENIENT ABOUT IT?

NO MAN CAN be other than himself, nor can he long live falsely. I know—and you do—those who pass through life betraying their mothers.

Maybe they get into a club that way or into some hotel. Or maybe they fool a bigoted mother-in-law, or land a job with one who does not employ their kind knowingly.

BUT THEY DO NOT FOOL THEMSELVES. THEY KNOW THAT THEY ARE SLEEKLY TAKING ADVANTAGE; THAT THEY LIVE A LIFE OF PRETENSE.

A young lady once applied for a job with me and gave such name as Keats.

I looked at her and said:

"Sister, I'd like to give you this job but can't, because I'd never believe a word you said to me."

The young thing was shocked until I explained to her that I was sure her name was not Keats. So she broke down and told me. It was no more cumbersome than mine own. I hired her.

NO, LEON ARDEN SUSSMAN! Do not try to be an "Anglican." Be what you are.

Judge Wenzel was so right. Einstein did not change his name to Iceland; Nimitz did not change his name to Nim; Rachmaninoff did not call himself Richmond.

The man who takes a single step to "cover up" his ancestry has nothing in his soul.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 2—I spent my lunch hour the other day listening to raves (from people who know, too) about the way Hedy Lamarr is going to surprise us all in "Strange Woman." They say she's burning up the screen in the most emotional performance she's ever given. Maybe that's because Producer Lamarr expects a whale of a performance from Actress Lamarr—you know, of course, that she's co-producing this with Jack Chertok for Hunt Stromberg. Then today I heard more news. Bill Lundigan, who just obtained his freedom from MGM, will be Hedy's leading man in her next, "Dishonored Lady."

Hedy Lamarr

Bill has been out of the Marines since August, but this will be his first movie since going into the service over three years ago. He was always very popular with the subdebs and "Dishonored Lady" should give him the chance to bid for more mature fans. By the way, John Loder is home again as leading man in Hedy's private life. Yep, they've made up.

DON'T TELL I told you but Barbara Bel Geddes has her pen in hand and is pretty sure to sign a contract with MGM any hour. The bait being dangled for that dazzling young lady is the role of Jinny in "Cass Timberlane." Well, that's a part any actress would grab. The Bel Geddes girl, who has made such a sensation in "Deep Are the Roots"—everyone says she's lovely—has been the most sought after girl in years, but between us I hear she's made up her mind, on advice of Leland Hayward, to take the MGM Deal.

BETTY HUTTON had to leave the studio and go home and of course that brought rumors she and Ted Briskin had another battle. The inside story is that Betty, who "gives" so much when she's rehearsing, outdid herself, and on top of that some youngsters found out where she lives and spent the night ringing her doorbell. She's signed a new contract with Paramount which gives her all the things she wanted—a raise and permission to do an outside picture. Her old contract had two years to go, but when she intimated she might not renew it if she didn't get what she wanted, the new paper was handed her pronto.

IN THE OLD days when Garbo was emoting on the MGM lot her close friend was Salka Viertel. There was an old saying that to get to Garbo you had to go through Viertel. She did all the highly specialized writing for her and Garbo wouldn't even read a script unless Salka advised her to. Now I am very interested to hear Viertel has been signed by Warners to write the screenplay on "Deep Valley," Don Tethero's novel. Henry Blanke arranged for Salka to write it for Lauren Bacall. He believes if Viertel could do the specialized writing for Garbo's unique personality she can tailor an ideal part for Bacall.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: What's in a name? Plenty where Dion Stanwyck, Barbara Stanwyck's 14-year-old son, is concerned. When Dion was just a baby, Barbara sat up nights thinking up a name for him and finally selected Dion because she thought it was so unusual. But ever since the boy was old enough to know his name he's been pestering Barbara to change it. "Whoever heard of anybody named Dion?" he yelled. "I want to be called Tony." Now after 14 years he got his way yesterday when she went to court to have it legally changed to Anthony Stanwyck. Now he's legally Anthony, but just Tony to his gang.

"THE SHOW MUST GO ON" is an old adage, and Douglas Dumbrille, the actor at Universal, is certainly the personification of that axiom. He was stricken with a kidney ailment and a very serious one, but refused to leave the set until the picture was finished, so he worked with a nurse at his elbow giving him a shot of morphine every time he thought he couldn't go on. He finished the picture and was taken to a hospital, where on the next day he had a very serious operation. Now I am glad to tell you the pleasant part of this story. He's recovered and is home, but says it's an experience he hopes never to have again.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Peggy "Forever Amber" Cummings and Vic (Forever) Orsatti are forever together; Mrs. Ray Sandler, the former Helen Hoffman, L. B. Mayer's niece, is the mother of a seven-pound boy; Joan Davis won $25 for thinking up a title for her own picture, "Love Takes a Holiday"; Jack Oakie will be best man at the wedding of Elena Verdugo and Charles Marion. Seems they met at Oakie's house; Ben Lyon cabled Bebe Daniels they had engine trouble in the Azores and he may be a day or two late getting home; I must remember to speak to 5-year-old Edith Evelove about her father's mustache. Yep, Alex has grown one; the Peter Rathvons are spending the week-end at the Floyd Odlum ranch, then Mrs. Rathvon goes to New York to see their 14-year-old daughter Judy.

HOWARD STRICKLING, everyone will be glad to know, is back at the studio after a two-weeks siege of flu; ran into Sam Wood at the David Selznick studio. He is very thin but says he's feeling better; Jerry Adler, brother of Larry, and Sylvia Gandel are saying "for better, for worse" next week; Frank Mandel, well known Chicago merchant, is having a cocktail party at the Club Monday and Mrs. Eddie Sutherland, who was once married to him, is arranging the party—and the Club belongs to Eddie. They were all having dinner together the other night. Tony Naylor, who is part owner of the Club, welcomed his fourth son. What's he trying to do—out-Bing Bing? Saw Steve Hannagan waiting impatiently for Ann Sheridan to get back from San Francisco. He spent two days with her helping celebrate her birthday. Met Mr. and Mrs. Watterson Rothacker (the former Millicent Jaeckel) and I must say the bride looked but stunning. They are back from fishing in Mexico.

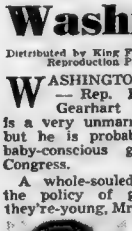
WASHINGTON, March 2 — Rep. Bertrand W. Gearhart of California is a very unmarried bachelor, but he is probably the most baby-conscious gentleman in Congress.

A whole-souled believer in the policy of get-'em-while-they're-young, Mr. Gearhart allows no grass, nor babies, to grow under his feet.



Rep. Gearhart

Whenever a couple of his constituents have a blessed event, which is a name I just thought up for the advent of an infant, Mr. Gearhart eases his extensive frame into a chair and writes them as follows:

"I have just learned of the arrival of a little baby in your home (he takes no chances on miscalling the sex) and hasten to extend my congratulations and hearty good wishes. I am sure this event will add much to the happiness of your family circle.

"Because our government is very much interested in children (Mr. Gearhart knows there is little likelihood of this statement being challenged) it has issued a publication which contains much valuable information relative to their care. If you would be interested in having a copy of this book, 'Infant Care,' and so advise me, I would be glad to send you one with my compliments."

IF THE NEW parents acknowledge the greetings, they receive this follow-up letter:

"It was good of you to write to me as you did in your most welcome communication of recent date, in which you conveyed to me your desire to have a copy of the publication 'Infant Care.'

"Needless to say, it is a personal pleasure indeed to supply you with this booklet. In order that you may have the pamphlet at the earliest possible time, I am enclosing a copy herewith."

Copyright, 1948, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Did y'ever have one of those days not a single thing goes right?"

Of course, anyone can get the same booklet by writing the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., but Mr. Gearhart wins a lot of gratitude by saving his constituents the trouble. If you want an idea of how it pays off politically, Mr. Gearhart has been elected to the last six Congresses—having been nominated each time by both the Republican and Democratic parties!

MR. GEARHART always knows when a child is born in his district because California law requires that all births be published. To avoid any stigma of illegitimacy, however, all announcements read the same.

Only the maiden name of the mother is given, as—"Born to John Smith and Mary Brown." In this way there's no tip-off to any possible lack of marital status.

"However," said Mr. Gearhart, "I always assume they are married. But the other day I assumed wrong. I received an indignant letter from a mother who didn't like having her name linked with the father. Apparently a rather exclusive and haughty type, she wrote:

"'I received your congratulations and many thanks for same. But I am not Mrs. ——.

"'I had his baby but we were not married. I do not like having my mail addressed in his name.'"

Boston After Dark

NEW YORK, March 2,—Boston fight fans who sent $2000 by special courier to New York to bet on Jimmy McAllister, the Baltimore colored featherweight, to lick Willie (The Whip) Pep, from Hartford, got a lucky break . . . the Boston courier had instruction to place the money on short-ender McAllister at odds of 8-5 or better . . . day-before-fight prices quoted Pep as favorite at 5 to 2, with one expert making him a 4-1 favorite to win . . . But the Boston money found no takers because the courier could find no money to support the Hartford champ unless the courier would accept the very short price of 6-5 . . . not being authorized to risk his package of $2000 on the chance of winning only $2400, the Boston man didn't wait to see the fight . . . it is just as well . . . Willie The Whip knocked McAllister almost out of the ring with a right hand punch in the last minute of the second round.

BERT LAHR REGRETS — He says that the "The Body and the Face," the new Mike Todd musical in which Bert will place "The Face" with Lois Andrews participating as "The Body," will not have its world premiere in Boston . . . "My radio show makes it impossible," said Bert. "Can't go that far from New York" . . . As producer Todd is not yet home from California, the plans for the show's opening have not been set . . . Our friends, the swoon-kids, should have seen their pet, Van Johnson, at the Stork Club . . . Billinsley, boss of the Stork, knew of Van's fondness for milk, and the Johnson table looked like a bottling plant . . . V. J. (as he now signs autograph books) got away with about three pints of milk . . . The apple-cheeked boy from Newport, R. I., is making the New York rounds in the continuing company of Sammy Renick, the jockey . . . Dapper Sammy would seem to be surprisingly sophisticated company for the bobby-soxers' delight. But the two became fast friends (no pun) in Florida and the friendship is keeping up . . . Young Van—who is 28—got a kick out of going to the restaurant named "21" . . . The doorman remembered him, and Van remembered the doorman. That functionary has not changed jobs in five years, and it was five years ago that Van was warned away from the exclusive precincts of "21," where you have to be known in advance (at rush hours) . . . V. J. then was a chorus kid.

ANOTHER FORMER chorus boy who made good with a bang in Hollywood is seeing the sights . . . It is a real pleasure to meet up with this ex-chorus boy once again . . . He is Cary Grant, and as gracious and considerate now as he was when he used to run for sandwiches and cigarets for Reggie Hammerstein and other executives.

EDDIE CONDON telephoned . . . He is giving a concert at Town Hall tonight . . . "Drop in," he suggested . . . "You'll get a preview of about what we'll be doing at Symphony Hall in Boston March 11" . . . Eddie is the jazz guitarist who has become the rage in New York as the maestro of the Condon Club . . . Eddie is very quick in the wit department . . . In response to our sincere statement that we were pleased to hear from him, he answered: "You should be . . . You are talking to the only New Yorker who didn't go to Miami this year" . . . The Broadway haunts were echoing today the quarrel between the drama critics and Harold Clurman and Elia Kazan, who staged and co-produced "Truckline Cafe" . . . As we mentioned yesterday, the critics were quite savage in denouncing the play . . . Clurman and Kazan took large space (in one newspaper) to reprove the critics . . . They charged the drama boys with lacking taste and having a fatal clutch on the theater—the New York theater, as they called it . . . The critics were winding up to pitch an answer at this writing.

SOME SMART ONE should consult the files and quote the nice things said by himself about "Deep Are the Roots" for Mr. Clurman, or in favor of some of these phony "artistic" successes he used to help stage for the Group Theater . . . As for Mr. Kazan . . . He would not have a $3000 a week job to hop back to in Hollywood had he not been acclaimed by the unanimous drama critics circle membership as a wonder-boy director.

NEW YORK, March 2—Elliott Roosevelt has signed with the W. Colston Leigh bureau for a nation-wide series of lectures in which he will espouse his late father's policies . . . Mickey Rooney is considering buying a local hotel . . . Candy Jones gave such a cold shoulder to her ex-beau (an advertising man) at a recent party that he burst into tears and actually moaned: "What have I done to deserve this?" . . . Everybody in Hollywood is trying to guess the name of the lad whose signature decorates the slave bracelet around Lena Horne's ankle. Clue: His first initial is A. . . . Nat Karson and Lubov Rudenko, the ballerina, are a new duet . . . Claudette Colbert hasn't been seen in a hit since she hit New York . . . What's in a name? Well, nothing except that business went up like crazy when Nick Quatrocchecchi changed the name of the Zodiac Room (at El Borracho) to the Kiss Room Jr. . . . Glamorous starlet Linda Christians has done all right since she arrived in New York with the Constellation contingent. Two fur coats in two weeks.

GOTHAM SCENERY: Marie (The Body) MacDonald belting bon mots at her buddies across a Coq Rouge ringside table . . . Linda Darnell, who has been so "bad" in recent cinemas, eating her vegetables like a very good girl at Ruby Foo's Den . . . Fr. Flanagan, of "Boys' Town" fame, strolling up Park ave. with a group of his lads . . . Connie Bennett holding onto her hat in the wind outside the Savoy-Plaza . . . Frank Morgan studying the billboards in Shubert Alley . . . Archie Robbins (who imitates him at the Roxy) watching with pop eyes as Charles Laughton slaughters blintzes in Lindy's . . . Gertrude Lawrence looking like an early crocus lunching at the Colony—with her red-blonde hair topping an emerald green suit.

By JACK CONWAY

MIAMI, Fla., March 2—The $50,000 added Widener Cup race that closes the record breaking meeting at Hialeah Park this afternoon should develop into a two-horse battle between Concordian, winner of the McLennan, and Armed, rated as the best handicap horse in the country. The other thoroughbreds in the field are not receiving much attention from the noble breed of handicappers. If one of these outside choices should win, there will be a mad scramble to the record books to see how it could have happened.

McLennan

When Concordian, owned by B. A. Murphy and trained by R. B. Odom, defeated Calumet Farm's Armed, trained by Ben Jones, in the McLennan, there was considerable arching of the eyebrows. Concordian had been suffering from rheumatism, while Armed was rated as the class of the horses in Florida.

True, Armed carried 128 pounds against 116 pounds for Concordian, but the difference in weight was not considered too important. Weight may be important today as Concordian, by some strange working of a racing secretary's mind, will carry only 109 pounds, while Armed will have his usual package of 128 pounds.

This is why Trainer Ben Jones announced that Concordian was certain to beat Armed. Jones is one of those old fashioned trainers who believes you can stop any thoroughbred if you pack enough weight on his back.

There was talk that Jones was going to ship Armed to California where there might be greener pastures, but the trainer of the Calumet Farm Stable decided to keep his handicap star in Florida.

Armed has looked good in training. He has displayed great speed, while he has possessed plenty of drive. There are still plenty of folks who think Armed will upset the dope and beat Concordian who is a sure thing to be the betting choice.

Protest Weight Rule

Horsemen and racegoers have protested to Racing Secretary Charley McLennan against the rule that causes weights for a big race to be allotted so far before the event takes place. If the weights for the Widener had not been set down early, Concordian would be in there today with 119 to 122 pounds instead of with 109 pounds.

McLennan says that the horsemen have always wisned to know as early as possible what the weights were to be for a race. If they did not like the weights given to their thoroughbred, they had a chance to ship for another track.

While the public is chiefly interested in the battle between Concordian and Armed, some other horse may upset the dope and win. One cannot very well overlook Ben Whitaker's four-year-old Hitem which will be ridden by Eddie Arcaro. Arcaro is at his best in big races, and he will be in there to win with his mount who will probably be an 8 to 1 shot at post time. Hitem will run as an entry with Chief Barker.

Other probable starters are Reply Paid, Omamax, Bel Reigh, and Petrol Point, the latter Concordian's running mate.

Record Crowd Expected

A record crowd is expected. It is believed that a new high will also be set for the mutuel handle. If there was not so much difference in weight between Concordian and Armed, it is also believed that the $2,000,000 betting mark would be reached here. It will be Hialeah's last opportunity to top the $2,000,000 goal.

In addition to the eight race program, there will be a special parade of the 500 flamingoes. Race-goers always like to see the flamingoes on parade. This may be due to the fact they do not sell mutuel tickets on the parade of the flamingoes and, as a result, everyone is happy when the parade is over.

Boston and New England will be well represented at Hialeah Park today. There are thousands of New England people in Florida and many of them will be in the stands in the Widener, which may produce one of the most thrilling races in the history of this classic.

Monday race-goers will journey to Tropical Park where they will have new hopes and also new problems.

Four Scratched In Hialeah 'Cap'

MIAMI, Fla., March 2 (INS)—The field of entries in the $50,000 added Widener Handicap at Hialeah was narrowed to 10 today as Hitem, Alex Barth, Sky Skipper and Blenel were scratched.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, slated to ride Hitem, will be switched to Ben Whitaker's other entry, Chief Barker.

B.A.A. Marathon Race May Be Run April 20

There is a strong possibility that the 50th annual B. A. A. Marathon—definitely cancelled by the games committee yesterday—will be held this year, although there may be a shift from the usual April 19 date to April 20.

Boston University officials opened the way for this new move with a statement this morning.

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of B. U., declared. "I discover after conference with the dean of the school of education (Donald D. Durrell) and with the treasurer of the university (E. Ray Speare) that it is practicable for us to allow the use of a limited and designated part of the Soden Building for the participants in the Marathon race and officials connected therewith on Saturday, April 20. We are glad in this way to enable the B. A. A. to carry on the fine tradition of the Marathon race."

The B. A. A. committee of Walter Brown, Tom Kanaly, both of the Boston Garden, and Desmond Wadsworth must still pass approval on this new date—although it's felt in official circles they'll approve. The trio were expected to meet today to consider this new offer.

Pressure of religious groups because April 19 falls on Good Friday, combined with the earlier views, that the old B. A. A. clubhouse, now B. U.'s Soden Building, would not be available on any other date, brought about the cancellation. The Pilot newspaper, through Editor Rev. John Sexton, had requested a shift from the holy day.

The Marathon is an annual feature of Patriots' Day, a strictly amateur event that attracts from 500,000 to a million spectators along its 26-mile 385-yard journey from Hopkinton to Exeter st. The first B. A. A. event was held in 1897 and it had previously been staged on a Good Friday.

The cancellation has brought a storm of protest from fans and runners alike.

It had been suggested that some other sports group take over the grind. Some runners had hinted that they would be out on the road at the usual time to go over the route, asking only that a hotel room be reserved on Exeter st. for the finish. Or they'd even settle for a tent, just so long as the tradition was preserved.

Needham Scores 2 Goals in First Period

BOSTON ARENA, March 3—Needham and Lexington High Schools, survivors of the first round of competition, squared off here this afternoon for the metropolitan hockey championship.

Needham vs. Lexington

FIRST PERIOD

Needham and Lexington exchanged power thrusts as each had a player in the penalty box. Walt Sabroski of Neewham and Don Mackay of the Minute Men were banned for interference. The period reached the 10-minute mark before Wilf Roman jumped for Needham at his own blue line, skirted the lone Lexington defense and went in alone to fire the puck into the strings.

A minute later, Roman picked up the disc at the boards, center passed to Bob Smith, who split the defense to chalk up No. 2 for the Bay Staters.

Score end first period: Needham 2, Lexington 0.

In the first minute of play Lexington lost Conrad Buck for interference as the play roughened. After weathering this, the Minutemen then were shorthanded as Don Mackay was banished. Back at full strength, Lexington battled it out all even until the Needham first wave edged through, Payson and Roman setting the stage for Sabroski's flip shot at 8:27.

Score end second period: Needham 3, Lexington 0.

Boston Tech vs. Rindge Tech

FIRST PERIOD

Boston Tech played defensive hockey throughout, taking only three shots at Goalie Ray Picard. The tactics proved successful as the Hub school limited the Rindge drives throughout.

Score End First Period—Rindge Tech 0, Boston Tech 0.

SECOND PERIOD

The intown boys earned the applause of the crowd as they turned back the famed Rindge flying line. Finally, the Greater Boston champions tallied on a 15-footer by Len Gagnon, set up by Pete Messure.

Score End Second Period—Rindge 1, Boston 0.

Bruins Plan No Changes

The Bruins highly thrilled over their latest success against the league leading Les Canadiens are headed for Chicago today, and a crucial game there tomorrow with the Hawks who must also play at Toronto tonight.

Manager Art Ross, quite pleased over the play of the Bruins against Canadiens, plans no changes in the team lineup for the game tomorrow night. Milton Schmidt will continue to center for Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, and Don Gallinger will center for Herb Cain and Bep Guidolin. Jack McGill will be between Ken Smith and Terry Reardon. Bill Shill is a doubtful starter because of his bad cold.

Brady vs. Lewis At Arena Tuesday

Dennis Brady, one of boxing's leading featherweight prospects, will clash with Cabey Lewis in the feature ten on the Goodwin A. C. fight menu on Tuesday at the Arena. This card is a sort of tuneup for the next Goodwin show, headed by Red Priest and Nava Esparza at the Garden on March 11.

Brady holds wins over some capable feathers. The Bronx youngster has one defeat to mar his record of 22 K. O.'s in 26 starts, that by Victor Flores. Brady's opponent, Cabey Lewis, has scored knockouts over Steve Kronis and Larry Bolvin and lost to Gus Mell.

Leo Mucucci of Portland will clash with Al Smith of Roxbury in the eight-round semi-final. Larry Pacino, Roxbury, and Couthel Saffold, N. Y., clash in another eight rounder.

Jackie Robinson Due In Camp Monday

SANFORD, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Jackie Robinson, Negro shortstop en route here for workouts with the Montreal Royals of the International League, was missing again today—due, camp officials said, to transportation difficulties.

Gambling Out, Says Chandler

TAMPA, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Reports that Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox and Dick Wakefield of the Detroit Tigers made "bets" as to who would have the best season in 1946 were answered today by Baseball Commr. A. B. Chandler's flat statement that "gambling in baseball is not tolerated."

"I can only repeat that gambling in baseball is not tolerated—you can quote me as saying that," Chandler declared when asked to confirm or deny that an investigation into the "bets" is being made.

The high commissioner of baseball and Mrs. Chandler will go to West Palm Beach Monday to look over the Philadelphia Athletics in spring training. The Chandlers are scheduled to sail Tuesday for Cuba.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 2—The hun dreds of heliotropes who have been milling around the Red Sox this week will see some extra-ordinary pinch-hitting tomorrow when Joe Cronin stages his first intra-squad game. Ted Williams has his eye on the ball.

Perhaps it was for the benefit of Rudy York that "The Kid" put on his first colossal performance. More likely it was because the high winds of early week had faded and the day was calm. At any rate, Williams catapulted one over the wall in right center, a distance of some 420 feet; another over the wall in right field, some 390 feet; a third against the wall in dead center, and a fourth, for variety, against the wall in left field.

"Greatest hitter I ever saw," said York in amazement, and York has seen some great ones since he entered the league in '34. In fact he's something of a hitter himself.

"Greatest hitter of all time," said Joe Cronin, "and I'm not excepting Ruth. The Babe might have been able to hit a ball farther than Ted, but for consistence, for daily output, for average, there never had been anything to match Williams."

"Never hit a ball better in my life," said Williams, referring to the drive that cleared the wall in right center. I feel stronger than ever, and I think I'm getting more distance than I did in 1942. But I'm sore all over. My throwing arm is twitching, my left forearm is aching (that's what supplies the power) give me one more week to loosen up, and I'll be able to judge myself better."

He ate no lunch ("gotta take of this extra avoirdupois" . . . he hoped Cincinnati still had good pitching so he could sharpen his eye on the way North (Sox and Reds travel together) . . . he wished his wife was still with him (she arrived in Boston from Sarasota) . . . he wished the Sox didn't have to play so many night games.

"You can't hit at night like you can in the day," he maintained. "It's harder to pick up the ball, and it's harder to ride for distance. Air is heavier."

When you consider his 1941 average of .406 which he compiled in both day and night games, you begin to realize the greatness. Cobb, Sisler, Jackson and Heilmann batted .400 in the A. L. but they played no night ball. They didn't experience the irregularities of diet and sleeping that night games cause. They didn't play 77 home games in a park that handicapped their style of hitting.

Jackson batted in Cleveland's league park which has a 297-foot right field barrier, the same fence that let Speaker lead the league in 1916. Sisler had a short right field in St. Louis, Cobb in Detroit. Heilmann's .400 mark probably was the most superb achievement before Williams' because he batted right-handed, and didn't get many favors in distance. Wasn't Yankee Stadium built for Ruth, and what break does DiMaggio get there any more than Williams at Fenway Park?

"You're looking at the greatest hitter that ever lived," said Cronin. There seems to be little doubt about it.

RUDY YORK . . . The Indian agreed to terms with Joe Cronin and took his first drill today with borrowed shoes and glove. His equipment is in Detroit . . . Joe Dobson also worked out, leaving Dom DiMaggio the only absentee

Williams Flu Victim

SARASOTA, Fla., March 2—Ted Williams joined the long list of Red Sox ailing today, when he came down with the grippe, and a temperature of 100. He was ordered to remain in bed and "sweat it out," by Trainer Win Green.

"He should be all right tomorrow," said Manager Joe Cronin who added, "It's funny but we never had a cold when we trained at Baltimore or Atlantic City. Down here everybody seems to have one."

Other Red Sox who have missed practice because of colds and other ailments are: Pellagrini, Tobin, Bremer, Wagner, Russell, Lang Johnson and Harris.

Braves Test Sain, Triner, Hutchings

By BILL GRIMES

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 2—Manager Billy Southworth will pitch Johnny Sain, Tim Triner and large John Hutchings at Miami tomorrow in the second of the Braves' seven-game series with the Giants . . . Mort Cooper and Jimmy Wallace will go along to do relief work . . .

John Hutchings

The Braves and Phillies will play a home-and-home series next week, Friday at Miami Beach and Saturday here . . . Bill Posedel won his own game yesterday with a long double in the 9th . . . During the three innings he pitched yesterday, Mort Cooper didn't bear down too much but allowed only one hit, a two bagger by Jim Carlin, which Tommy Holmes could have caught, if he had drifted back to the fence . . . Mort stated, after the game, that he was a trifle sore back of his right shoulder but that his elbow was perfect.

Joe Fryer, southpaw hurler up from Hartford, looked good yesterday for the first time . . . Bob Detweiler's wrist, and Ed. Wright's foot are not responding to treatment . . . Mr. and Mrs. Win Karlson drove up from Miami to sit in on yesterday's game . . . Win is custodian of the press gate at Braves Field and Fenway Park . . . Accompanied by Dr. Wilson of Meriden, Ct., Pres Ford Frick of the N. L. watched the Braves work out.

Cooper is celebrating his 32nd birthday today . . . His brother Sam will be 18 the 20th of the month . . . Johnny Cooney, Jake Flowers, Tommy Holmes and "Whitey" Wietelmann all have birthdays in March . . . Carden Gillenwater is about 15 pounds under weight . . . He had the "flu" early in February and is as thin as a rail . . . Little Gene Patton slapped Bill Lee's first pitch over the right field fence for a home run yesterday . . . Stan Wentzel connected with two singles and a double, all well stroked.

George Scholl, rookie infielder who will go to Evansville, flew a B-24 during the war . . . Louie Leonard and Judge Vincent Brogna are vacationing here and have become rabid Braves' fans . . . Louis Perini's new 10-passenger plane will cost $75,000 . . . Ford Frick will fly with Perini to St. Petersburg next week . . . Sam Cooper developed a stitch in his side yesterday and had to quit the mound . . . Al Treichel's wildness could result from his looking at the ground instead of catcher's glove when he pitches . . . Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler is expected here next week . . . He's making a tour of the major league camps in this state.

Sy Rosenthal to Marry Tomorrow

A new impetus in his long fight against paralysis comes tomorrow to Si Rosenthal, former Red Sox baseball player and Navy veteran.

He will be wed to "the girl who understands"—Miss Josephine Rosenthal of San Antonio, Tex. Rosenthal will be taken from Chelsea Hospital in a wheel chair to Dorchester.

He was wounded when the ship he was aboard was blown up in Cherbourg.

Pep-Bartolo Bout Set for June 7

NEW YORK, March 2 (AP)—Willie Pep, of Hartford, the New York Connecticut-Pennsylvania-New Jersey champion, and Sal Bartolo of Boston, the NBA title-holder, will fight for the undisputed featherweight championship on June 7 in Madison Square Garden, promoter Mike Jacobs announced today.

The 15-round scrap originally was scheduled for last night, but was postponed because of Bartolo's claim he was ill.

Haverhill Sought In School Tourneys

By MIKE GILLOOLY

It seems that Coach Charlie White of Haverhill High School is the type of fellow who just can't resist an invitation. He's nodding his head to everything confident that his classy, undefeated basketball team—entered in two tournaments with an option on a third—will prove the sensation of the East in schoolboy ranks.

Haverhill today is named as one of the six teams invited to participate in the Class A competition of the Eastern Mass. championship, scheduled to swing into action next Thursday

Haverhill, as champion of the Essex County League, was virtually an automatic choice for this "Tech" play-off. Coach White knew that, as he told the boys of the chance to participate in the Glen's Falls Tourney, March 28. But the kids on the squad are as confident as their coach. They decided to "shoot the works" by: 1—winning the Eastern State title; 2—taking over the New England crown; 3—recovering to capture the Eastern States championship.

Off their seasonal record, Haverhill will enter this Garden play as the favorite. The team, after a mid-season slump that threatened to ruin an undefeated record, recovered nicely to romp down the home stretch. The boys are back at their peak form, now, for this return to the Garden boards.

The quintet that set a new high for the season this week against Peabody, its 18th victim, lists center Tony Augusta, 6.1 inch; forwards Joe Barry and Don Scatamacchia, and guards Charlie Valoras and Americo Carifeo. Haverhill swamped Medford earlier this season on the North Station upstairs floor.

Other choices named by Director Henry McCarthy include Newton (14-1), Suburban league titlist; Attleboro (13-3); New Bedford (12-5); Brockton (13-2) and Durfee of Fall River (10-4). Somerville and Everett, co-champions of the Greater Boston circuit will complete the A teams.

Of this group, Attleboro has been nominated publicly as the team to beat. Coach Howard Tozier has just stepped out of the U. S. Navy ranks in time to drive his team to a highly successful campaign that many feel will be the survivor of this carnival.

Coach Tozier has no outstanding star on his squad, relying on balance to put his club across. Veteran Rollie Kubinski will be at center; Frank Pinicci and Normy Vinson at forwards with Gene Lavous and Dick Cronin at guards. This group has dropped annoying decisions to New Bedford (2 points); Brockton (2 points) and Durfee (one point).

Coach Luke Urban's five, a returnee, has been named with the team in the midst of the Southeasterns' Principal Tournament in Taunton

Pics, Clippers Clash Tonight

Coach Hago Harrington will have his play-off squad on display at the Boston Arena tonight when the Olympics complete their Eastern League season with the Baltimore Clippers.

Harrington has been resting many of his veteran players over the past week and he wants the entire squad to get back into the swing of working together once more before they plunge into the play-offs at Madison Square Garden on Sunday afternoon. With this thought in mind, Harrington will have Babando-Schnurr-Marquess on the starting line.
